

Health URL Service and Appliances

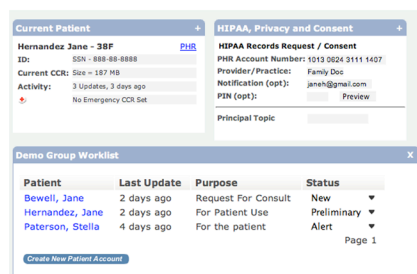

Collaborative PHR tools for patients and doctors

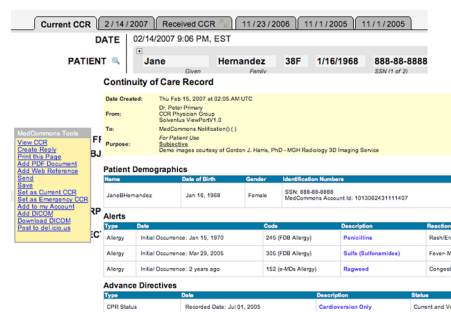

PROBLEM	How does a practice, hospital or lab integrate personal health records (PHR) and also benefit the bottom line?
MedCommons	Enterprise-friendly personal control of web-accessible private health records <ul style="list-style-type: none">• ATM-like network• Markle Connecting for Health / Dossia.org compliant• Institutions federate as they see fit• Consumers and doctors control transfers between federated institutions
PROVIDERS	Install an IHE-standard appliance <ul style="list-style-type: none">• Provide valuable clinical services to their patients anywhere around the world• Caregiver single sign-on to standard PHRs• Federated identity management option for doctors and patients• Web service of health records they select• Access to aggregated private health records• Send and receive diagnostic quality imaging with or without a PACS
HEALTH 2.0	Collaborate <ul style="list-style-type: none">• Health URL for both teaching and clinical uses• Built-in secure email and cell phone access• RSS feeds of updates to the PHR• Built-in social networking group worklists and a team page for each PHR• Open social networking with standard wikis, blogs, calendars and web sites

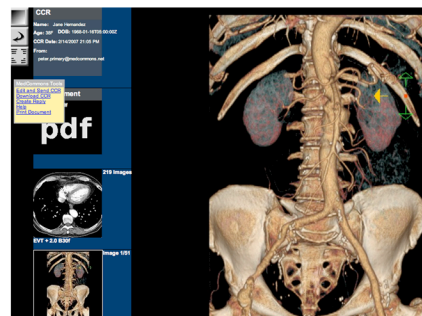

Embed Private Health Records into Web portals as a hosted service or direct from your site.

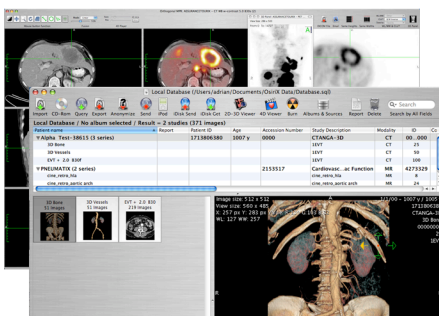

Web-accessible worklist keeps distributed practices and care teams in touch.

Work with standard documents and forms presented in familiar ways without vendor lock-in.

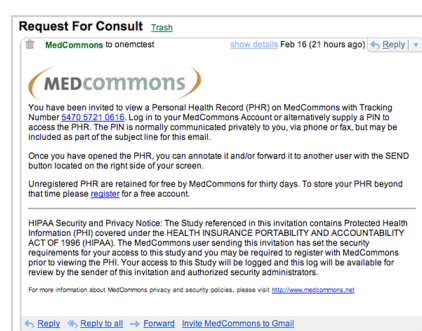

Built-in imaging for radiology and cardiology with zoom, pan and reports in the Web browser.

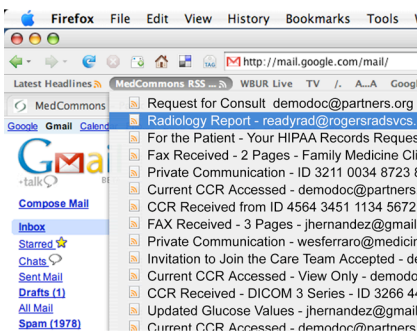

Teleradiology to and from DICOM 3D workstation. One-click OsiriX integration.

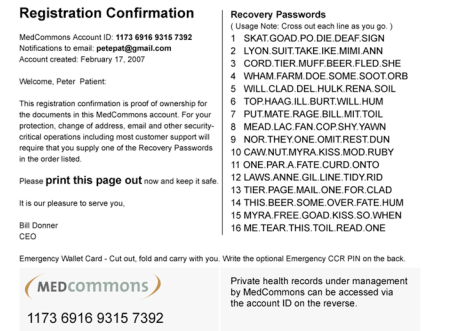

Personalized bar-coded fax cover sheets anyone can use from anywhere.

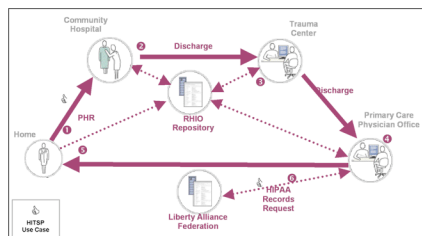

Secure email with integrated address lists customized to both the practice and the PHR.

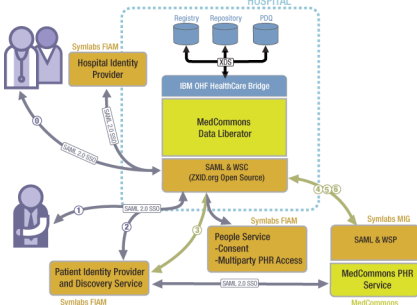

RSS feeds, a standard feature of each PHR, announce updates and care team access.

Cryptographic codes preserve control of your account while securing your privacy.

IHE conformance for access to standard enterprise EHR, networks and RHIOs.

Federated identity and single sign-on standards for privacy and convenience.

Licensing, dealer inquiries:

MedCommons, Inc.
52 Marshall St.
Watertown, MA 02472

www.medcommons.net
617 395 6744
info@medcommons.net